Ralph Gilles: Everyone knew what was wrong with the cars. You asked any employee in the company, they could list 10 things that they would do better. ==And when you're given the chance to do those 10 things better==, you end up with a product that exceeds the sum of its parts.